The present invention relates to an apparatus for adjusting the position of a work surface relative to a work-piece table. Molds for forming poured concrete forms are generally formed from one or more generally planar, vertically extending upper surfaces connected by one or more generally horizontal lower surfaces. The surfaces of such a mold are configured and arranged to receive poured concrete in a manner which produces a completed concrete form having a generally desired shape. The upper surfaces of such a mold are generally horizontally oriented and extend generally vertically above the mold bottom. The upper surfaces of such a mold can be arranged at a variety of different and particular angles with respect to one another and the lower surface of the mold. Prior art concrete molds have a front face and a back face. The front face is the vertical surface at which the poured concrete is intended to be formed. The front face is generally smooth. The back face has an upper surface and a lower surface. The upper surface of the back face of the mold is preferably generally horizontal. The lower surface of the back face is a vertically extending, generally horizontal surface. The upper surface of the back face has a substantially flat surface. The mold, which has an upper surface including at least a front face, a back face and a generally planar surface therebetween is normally moved into position over a work surface on a work-piece table. The work-piece table extends vertically above the mold, thereby creating a mold cavity. The mold is generally arranged substantially perpendicularly with respect to the work surface so that the flat upper surface of the back face and the flat lower surface of the back face can fill the mold cavity created by a work-piece table. Such a mold is arranged at an angle with respect to the work surface, wherein the front face is facing upwardly towards the work surface, and wherein the back face is arranged at an angle towards the work surface. To fill the mold cavity, the mold is positioned over the work surface. The work-piece table and the mold are then moved vertically in unison from a position above the mold and positioned over the work surface. The vertical movement of the mold and the work-piece table in unison then causes the mold cavity to fill with concrete. Often times, a concrete block is being formed. During the formation of the block, it may be desired

The Maricopa County Sheriff's Department announced the charges Monday against 28-year-old Jonathan Morris. Police said Morris stole drugs, a cellphone and keys from the home and that he was carrying two guns at the time. Authorities say the pregnant 24-year-old mother came home in the early morning hours of Jan. 4. When she entered the room, Morris shot her in the head. Morris was shot in the foot. He's since been hospitalized and released. Maricopa County Attorney Bill Montgomery said Morris has been fired from his job and has been placed on paid administrative leave. Hilarious spoof: Overjoyed schoolgirl plays for FA Cup semi-final A hilarious spoof of famous footballing lines has been used to celebrate the FA Cup semi-final between Aston Villa and Birmingham City. The video shows a little girl wearing a Villa shirt, making a list of to-dos before her FA Cup semi-final trip to the famous football stadium at Villa Park. A rather bright-eyed chap can be heard asking, 'So where's the toilet?' To which the little girl replies, 'Up the stairs and then left.' However, the chap then throws in a reference to Villa midfielder Steve Sidwell which prompts the little girl to add: 'And then we've got to get our CVs out and get to the office. 'You go straight there and then you've got a whole day to sit in the office.' The chap, playing as Birmingham's player, is then heard asking, 'Which office?' Sadly for Aston Villa, and for the man in the video, they lost their FA Cup semi-final last weekend to Birmingham, which involved a 5-1 victory for the home side. The video ends with the maid from fairy tales listing the party essentials in
